

PATRIOTHACKS

About PatriotHacks

PatriotHacks is a multi-disciplinary hackathon hosted by George Mason University that is open to students from colleges and universities across the United States. Student-led teams will work with industry mentors over a weekend to develop their innovative ideas. We expect 200+ student participants, many of whom will have STEM backgrounds. This April 9 - 11, we invite you to join the third annual PatriotHacks.

Why Sponsor?

We need the support of corporate partners to make this event possible. By sponsoring this hackathon, your company will meet a highly entrepreneurial and hard-working group of young adults. Individuals will come from a variety of disciplines, all of whom will be eager to apply their innovative solutions to real world problems.
